

“ ”

David Bergman

Professor Emeritus,
Pediatrics, Stanford
University School of Medicine

One of the areas we've been exploring (at Stanford) is caregivers. There's a lot of commonality in caregivers, both for the frail, elderly, and for pediatrics. And since the family is kind of the ultimate healthcare delivery system, it may be possible to develop digital health tools that have greater applicability across different ages.